The Things We Carry With Us:
The Things We Carry With Us: How Context Shapes and Shades Our Relationships

How do less visible and often silenced contexts guide how we interact with each other from moment-to-moment? Or our willingness to understand the lives of others in ways that lead to change or social justice? Join us for an interactive workshop where we will journey “out of contexts” and into understandings that can transform how we create and sustain diverse and multiple relationships at a time when doing so is both relevant and paramount to the world in which we live.

Discussion with Professor Abegunde

Refreshments provided.