Drawn from a larger study of the relationship between the center and periphery at a unique juncture in Soviet history, when the former descended on the latter and took up residence there, this presentation focuses on the response to evacuees and their institutions by the people, enterprises, and governing organs of the Kirov region and what that response tells us about Soviet citizenship and Soviet governance.

Sponsors: Russian and East European Institute, Department of History

Persons with disabilities who wish to attend this event and would like to request assistance should contact the REEI office (812-855-7309 or reei@indiana.edu).